Chapter 27: Immediately after Chapter 27 and its title, insert the following chapter notes:

Note 1: For the purpose of heading 27.07, a “chemical reaction” is a process (including a biochemical process) which results in a molecule with a new structure by breaking intramolecular bonds and by forming new intramolecular bonds, or by altering the spatial arrangement of atoms in a molecule.

The following are not considered to be chemical reactions for the purposes of this definition:

- (a) the dissolution in water or other solvents;
- (b) the elimination of solvents, including solvent water; or
- (c) the addition or elimination of water of crystallization.

Note 2: For the purpose of heading 27.10, the following processes confer origin:

- (a) Atmospheric distillation – A separation process in which petroleum oils are converted, in a distillation tower, into fractions according to boiling point and the vapour then condensed into different liquefied fractions. Liquefied petroleum gas, naphtha, gasoline, kerosene, diesel/heating oil, light gas oils, and lubricating oil are produced from petroleum distillation;

- (b) Vacuum distillation – Distillation at a pressure below atmospheric but not so low that it would be classed as molecular distillation. Vacuum distillation is useful for distilling high-boiling and heat-sensitive materials such as heavy distillates in petroleum oils to produce light to heavy vacuum gas oils and residuum. In some refineries gas oils may be further processed into lubricating oils;
- (c) Catalytic hydroprocessing – The cracking and/or treating of petroleum oils with hydrogen at high temperature and under pressure, in the presence of special catalysts. Catalytic hydroprocessing includes hydrocracking and hydrotreating;
- (d) Reforming (catalytic reforming) – The rearrangement of molecules in a naphtha boiling range material to form higher octane aromatics (i.e., improved antiknock quality at the expense of gasoline yield). A main product is catalytic reformate, a blend component for gasoline. Hydrogen is another by-product;
- (e) Alkylation – A process whereby a high-octane blending component for gasolines is derived from catalytic combination of an isoparaffin and an olefin;

- (f) Cracking – A refining process involving decomposition and molecular recombination of organic compounds, especially hydrocarbons obtained by means of heat, to form molecules suitable for motor fuels, monomers, petrochemicals, etc:
- (i) Thermal cracking – Exposes the distillate to temperatures of approximately 540-650C (1000-1200F) for varying periods of time. Process produces modest yields of gasoline and higher yields of residual products for fuel oil blending;
- (ii) Catalytic cracking – Hydrocarbon vapors are passed at approximately 400C (750F) over a metallic catalyst (e.g., silica-alumina or platinum); the complex recombinations (alkylation, polymerization, isomerization, etc.) occur within seconds to yield high-octane gasoline. Process yields less residual oils and light gases than thermal cracking;
- (g) Coking – A thermal cracking process for the conversion of heavy low grade products, such as reduced crude, straight run pitch, cracked tars, and shale oil into solid coke (carbon) and lower boiling hydrocarbon products which are suitable as feed for other refinery units for conversion into lighter products; and

(h) Isomerization – The refinery process of converting petroleum compounds into their isomers.

Note 3: For the purpose of heading 27.10, “direct blending” is defined as a refinery process whereby various petroleum streams from processing units and petroleum components from holding/storage tanks combine to create a finished product, with pre-determined parameters, classified under heading 27.10, provided that the non-originating material constitutes no more than 25 per cent by volume of the good.

Chapter 28: Immediately after Chapter 28 and its title, insert the following chapter notes:

Note 1: Notes 3 through 4 of this Chapter confer origin to a good of any heading or subheading in this Chapter.

Note 2: Notwithstanding Note 1, a good is an originating good if it meets the applicable change in tariff classification specified in the rules of origin of this Chapter.

Note 3: Chemical Reaction

A good of this Chapter that results from a chemical reaction in the territory of one or both of the Parties shall be treated as an originating good.

For the purpose of this Chapter, a “chemical reaction” is a process (including a biochemical process) that results in a molecule with a new structure by breaking intramolecular bonds and forming new intramolecular bonds, or by altering the spatial arrangement of atoms in a molecule.

The following are not considered to be chemical reactions for the purpose of determining whether a good is originating:

- (a) the dissolution in water or in another solvent;*
- (b) the elimination of solvents, including solvent water; or*
- (c) the addition or elimination of water of crystallization.*

Note 4: Purification

A good of this Chapter that is subject to purification shall be treated as an originating good provided that the purification occurs in the territory of one or both of the Parties and results in the elimination of not less than 80 per cent of the impurities.

Note 5: Separation Prohibition

A good that undergoes a change from one tariff classification to another in the territory of one or both of the Parties as a result of the separation of one or both materials from a man-made mixture shall not be treated as an originating good unless the isolated material undergoes a chemical reaction in the territory or one or both of the Parties.

Chapter 29: Immediately after Chapter 29 and its title, insert the following chapter notes:

Note 1: Notes 3 through 5 of this Chapter confer origin to a good of any heading or subheading in this Chapter, except as otherwise specified in those notes.

Note 2: Notwithstanding Note 1, a good is an originating good if it meets the applicable change in tariff classification specified in the rules of origin of this Chapter.

Note 3: Chemical Reaction

A good of this Chapter that results from a chemical reaction in the territory of one or both of the Parties shall be treated as an originating good.

For the purpose of this Chapter, a “chemical reaction” is a process (including a biochemical process) that results in a molecule with a new structure by breaking intramolecular bonds and by forming new intramolecular bonds, or by altering the spatial arrangement of atoms in a molecule.

The following are not considered to be chemical reactions for the purpose of determining whether a good is originating:

- (a) the dissolution in water or in another solvent;*
- (b) the elimination of solvents, including solvent water; or*
- (c) the addition or elimination of water of crystallization.*

Note 4: Purification

A good of this Chapter that is subject to purification shall be treated as an originating good provided that the purification occurs in the territory of one or both of the Parties and results in the elimination of not less than 80 per cent of the impurities.

Note 5: Isomer Separation

A good of this Chapter shall be treated as an originating good if the isolation or separation of isomers from mixtures of isomers occurs in the territory of one or both of the Parties.

Note 6: Separation Prohibition

A good that undergoes a change from one tariff classification to another in the territory of one or both of the Parties as a result of the separation of one or both materials from a man-made mixture shall not be treated as an originating good unless the isolated material undergoes a chemical reaction in the territory of one or both of the Parties.
